And now Clayton hints he wants to make her wife number 4. But how can she trust him? Especially with the hot, just out of college Filipino webmaster he hired to start up his online business?

At the end of Lion Heart, Summer succeeds in getting both families together to celebrate Father's Day, so Clayton can spend it with his children and grandchildren.

That just begins her struggle with the world -- and both their families -- to win acceptance for loving a man twice her age.

And just begins Clayton's struggle to get Summer to accept both his love and his kinky furry sexual desires.

Summer learns to enjoy playing Clayton's 'lioness' sometimes, and Clayton realizes his greatest sexual satisfaction comes from making love to the woman he adores -- even without fur suits.

Summer must also struggle with the fear -- based on his behavior during his three marriages -- he cheats on her.

She gives him an ultimatum. One foul, out for life.

He swears he won't, but how can Summer believe him?

Clayton's family, excluding Clayton's jealous second ex-wife, adores Summer -- but they all want her to marry Clayton's son, Calwood.

Summer's best friend and roommate, calls Clayton a dangerous pervert.

Summer still struggles to accept a man loving her. Especially a rich, successful man such as Clayton.

Clayton keeps asking Summer to marry him, but she fears taking her place as Wife Number 4 will lead to a slot as Ex-Wife Number 4.

Clayton's vindictive second ex-wife plays a "home video" that could destroy both Clayton and Summer personally and professionally . . . if she carries out her threat to upload it to YouTube.

And what's in the package Clayton hides from Summer? Ana, the hot Filipino who works with him everyday in his new home business, knows.

With so much against them, the world outside and their own inner demons, can Summer and Clayton's love triumph?
