What do you do when everything you trusted in collapses? How do you prepare for a sudden change in life? How do you recover, when life hits you on your blind side? After a lifetime of hard work, dedication, commitment and loyalty to a chosen career, how do you suddenly change your vocation and skill sets? What do you do when a lifelong dream and investment is suddenly taken from you through no fault of your own? How do you bounce back after institutions that were expected to protect you suddenly pull the rug out from under your life? What do you say to your family, when you face the reality that you may no longer be able to fulfill their expectations for security, support, and provision? What do you do when your dreams are crushed in the fires of survival? Where do you go, when the ones you go to for help are also in need of help? Each of us will face some type of pain. We all encounter situations over which we have no personal control, which we did not expect or could not prevent. Many of us, perhaps, are still trying to recover from a broken marriage, the still birth of a child or the unexpected death of a loved one. Maybe you've lost your dream house, your dream car, your baby, or your business. Whatever your situation, these are all categorized as pain. I must tell you, through the midst of it all, your pain has purpose. Living on earth requires that we must expect the unexpected and prepare for the unseen. It's the nature of life. If you are in this season, I believe this book is for you.
