“Listen, I really like you.”

“Awww. I really like you too - you’re such a good friend!”

Those are words no one ever wants to hear.

If you’ve ever uttered the words, “we’re just friends,” you know all too well the awkwardness of being in that situation. And if you’ve ever been told “we’re just friends,” you know the weird and embarrassing pain of telling your crush you want to take the relationship to the next level, only to be told they don't feel the same way.

Many people from all walks of life face unrequited love and wind up in the "friend zone."

What if I told you most people friend zone themselves?

One of the reasons people end up being "just friends" is they are simply not attractive to the person they desire.

Is it possible to get out the friend zone?

Enter Angelo, an obese tech engineer in desperate need of losing 180 pounds of body fat. When serendipity introduces him to super fit Jean, he’s instantly placed inside the infamous friend zone. Ignoring countless rejection and logical reasoning, Angelo embarks on a mythical journey over three mountains. Never giving in to despair, Angelo’s astonishing journey shows you how far willpower, perseverance and love can take you. And that nothing’s over until it’s over.

More than a book about struggling with the mystery of the friend zone dilemma, this insightful true story is about breaking down self-imposed limitations about what’s possible in love, life and fitness. It showcases you must stumble in order to triumph, and the transformative power of the human mind. Witty, inspirational and unflatteringly honest, this feel-good drama appeals to the very essence of why romantic relationships are so hard to be successful. And why they’re worth the often painful pursuit.

Whether you're in a relationship, looking for a relationship, or happily single, you'll walk away with a renewed faith in dating and relationships.
