This proceedings, "After the Rain Has Fallen", is a collection of technical papers presented at the Ground Water Management Symposium held in conjunction with the 1998 International Water Resources Engineering Conference in Memphis, Tennessee, August 3-7, 1998. International experts in ground-water management explored a wide range of ground-water related issues from the technical to the sociological, from the latest in ground-water modeling to case histories. Some of the issues discussed are: fate and transport of contaminants; ground-water remediation; ground/surface water interactions; and ground-water contamination.
