Natalie Evans is a professional black woman with an eye for detail. She is a sought after headhunter for several companies that are looking for new talent to add to their roster. She gets, so caught up in her work that she doesn't realize that her love life has become nothing, but a memory. Her last relationship was three years ago, although she does feel that there's an itch that needs to be scratched. She's not much for clubs or even going on the Internet to a dating site. She believes in the old adage of love at first sight, but she has never experienced it herself. She soon meets up with Jerome. There is an edge about him with tats on his arm, but also one over his eye. She knows that the man is damaged and that his past has a way of creeping up at the most inopportune time. Can she save him from himself or is he doomed to repeat past mistakes?

A Thug to Remember

Thelma Grayson is a successful black woman, super educated and with excellent manners and smarts that have earned her a reputation even at such a young age. The one aspect she's lacking in is socializing and looking for fun. Her best friend Stella invites her to a high school reunion—or more like drags her kicking and screaming!

However, disaster strikes when Anton Bridges, a notorious black gangster shows up to wreak havoc on all the “pretty white people” and makes a public scene. When Thelma stands up to the notorious gang lord and questions him one on one, sparks fly.

Somewhere along the way from disagreement, respect and passion, comes a strong sense of animal attraction shared between the two polar opposites. Anton may be a player who's good with the ladies, but Thelma may be just the strong woman needed to challenge Anton's view on the world. This urban romance erotica is sizzling hot and ends with a “bang.”
