Staff Cadet: Bishing, Bogging, Bastardisation and Going Bush (From Boys' Brigade to Brigadier Book 1) Allan A. Murray

This book is about my experience as a Staff Cadet within a company of the Corps of Staff Cadets – ‘the Corps’ – in the 1970s and 80s at the Royal Military College-Duntroon.

I aspired to be commissioned Army Officer in the Australian Army. My experiences included ‘bishing’, ‘bogging’, ‘bastardisation’ and going bush.

I started writing this book in 1978. Some of the subjects I cover are not pleasant. Comparisons between life in ‘the Corps’ before 1983 and Lord of the Flies are not unreasonable. I have chosen to be descriptive and minimized being judgmental in hindsight.

During the subsequent years of occasionally recording my thoughts on life and events as they occurred in ‘the Corps’, I adopted an anthropological style and wrote distinct subject related pieces. Looking back now, these pieces offer the raw thoughts of a young man on the events of a society that engulfed him, often perplexingly, in the years between 1978 and 1983.
